

Don't delay if you have to pay!

Staff Sgt. Alejandra Bustamante and Staff Sgt. Charles VonNordheim, both from the 8th Fighter Wing legal office, help Senior Airman Brian Merrifield, 8th FW public affairs, file his taxes. The deadline to file is Monday, however, Wolf Pack members are eligible for a two-month extension but those who owe incur interest payments. For more information, call 782-1TAX (1829).

Tax Tips

According to tax center officials, to have federal and state returns prepared properly, military members must bring the following items:

- * W-2 forms for 2000. Married people should also bring their spouse's W-2 form.

- * 1099s or bank statements showing the amount of interest accrued on bank accounts during 2000.

- * Last year's tax return if you filed a 1040 (not a 1040EZ).

- * All documents for the following items: Social Security income, alimony payments, mortgage payments, dividends, interest earned, and capital gains and losses from the sale of stocks, bonds or property. Essentially, bring all tax documents received in the mail, including mutual fund statements, statements of mortgage interest paid or student loan interest paid, and, for part-time college students in 2000, statements of how much spent on tuition, fees and books.

- * If you are married and request to file a joint return, a power of attorney or IRS Form 2848 is required. The power of attorney requires a signature from your spouse and allows the servicemember to sign the electronic filing documents on behalf of the spouse.
